SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The U.S. State Department Central Files are the definitive source of American diplomatic reporting on political, military, social, and economic developments throughout the world in the twentieth century. This edition consists of the Central Files for Cuba for the period between February 1963 and 1966. The files are arranged according to the State Department Records Classification System, February 1963–1973. The subjects from the classification system included in this edition are AID (Foreign Economic Assistance), CSM (Communism), DEF (Defense Affairs), INT (Intelligence), and POL (Political Affairs and Relations). The files consist of cables and letters sent and received by U.S. diplomats and embassy personnel; reports on meetings between U.S. and foreign government officials and leaders; newspaper clippings and translations from journals and newspapers; and reports and observations on political, military, and social affairs.

This edition of Central Files for Cuba begins with a brief series of items from the AID category. These files consist of correspondence and reports pertaining to economic assistance to Cuba from the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

The CSM file pertains to Cuban Communist activities and spread of propaganda in Latin America. Although the CSM folders constitute a small portion of the collection, Communism is an ever-present topic throughout the documents.

In the DEF category, the dominating subject is Guantanamo Bay Naval Base operations, particularly military conflicts with Cubans along its perimeter. The military and political influence of the USSR in Cuba is also a central topic.

The INT files, like other documents throughout the folders, remain classified by the State Department. Documents exempted from declassification are replaced with a sheet providing the document title, correspondents, and security category of its withdrawal.

POL is the largest category in this edition. Relations between Cuba and other Latin American nations are covered in substantial detail in this section, focusing particularly on Cuba's political influence and alleged subversive activities in other nations. OAS activities and methods of persuading nations to break relations with Cuba are major topics of discussion. The actions of U.S. citizens sympathetic to Cuban politics were closely followed. After the break in relations with Cuba in 1961, U.S. citizens were barred from traveling to the island. The files monitor enforcement of travel restrictions, including hearing transcripts of the House Un-American Activities Committee, which interrogated citizens who traveled to Cuba both before and after the ban.

The collection bears witness to many critical events in Cuban history, including the disappearance of Ernesto "Che" Guevara and his re-emergence in Africa, OAS sanctions against Cuba following the controversial discovery of an arms cache off the coast of Venezuela, and the attack on the Spanish ship, the Sierra Aranzazu.

Other topics covered in the POL category include radical Cuban exile groups, spread of Communist propaganda, Fidel Castro's trip to the USSR, U.S. overflights, and the Vietnam War.

The Subject Numeric File categories included in this publication are Economic, Political, and Defense. All available original documents have been microfilmed. The documents reproduced in this publication are among the records of the U.S. Department of State in the custody of the National Archives of the United States.

EDITORIAL NOTE

UPA has microfilmed all available original documents as they are arranged at the National Archives. Only exact duplicate copies of documents have been excluded from this micropublication. In a small number of instances, some documents have been misfiled or misclassified by the Department of State. UPA has included, in brackets, corrected subject citations. UPA has microfilmed these documents as they are arranged in the original collection. Only the Economic, Political, and Defense Subject-Numeric file categories are included in this publication.

STATE DEPARTMENT RECORDS CLASSIFICATION SYSTEM, FEBRUARY 1963–JULY 1973

Essential to the effective administration of the State Department and its overseas posts is the management of records. In keeping with the State Department's program to improve and modernize its administrative processes, the department developed a new comprehensive records classification system in February–March 1963 (used until July 1973).

This new uniform file system enabled users to file and find material rapidly—the usefulness of recorded information being largely dependent upon the logical arrangement of records. The new system applied to both official and working files.

The new system was based on several years of research and embodied many substantial contributions made by departmental and overseas personnel. An effort had been made to provide sufficient flexibility and subject matter coverage to meet the needs of offices and posts both large and small.

A. PURPOSE AND SCOPE

The new Records Classification System embodied a uniform official file system to be used throughout the department and its overseas posts. It was intended for use by operating offices as well as by departmental and post central files operations. The new system did not apply to certain types of case files, however, such as official personnel files, security investigative files, voucher files, and so forth. Offices continued to maintain chronological files where necessary or desirable.

B. ARRANGEMENT AND CONTENT

1. Subject File Outlines

The attached file outlines [provided by UPA beginning on page xv] comprise the new file system. They were arranged within seven broad subject matter areas (known earlier as classes), with each including specific subdivisions of related secondary and tertiary code symbols.

2. Special Instructions

a. International Organizations and Conferences

This system provided a special method for handling records accumulated in large quantities by offices that were primarily interested in a specific organization or conference rather than in the subject matter with which it dealt. Use of this special feature of the new file system afforded such offices a method for organizing this type of record material to meet their own reference needs within the framework of the new system. It proved of particular use to the Bureau of International Organization Affairs and to United States Missions to international organizations, such as the U.S. United Nations Delegation.

b. Commercial Officers

This instruction to the system was prepared in cooperation with the Department of Commerce for the special guidance of commercial officers in their use of the new file system. It provided for pre-coding of commercial-economic reports with the appropriate subject matter code symbols.

c. Peace Corps Representatives

This instruction to the system was prepared in cooperation with the Peace Corps for the guidance of its field representatives in records organization and maintenance. It prescribed the use of the appropriate administrative subject outlines for Peace Corps records administration.

d. U.S. Information Service (USIS)

Special subject designations were developed in cooperation with the U.S. Information Agency for use by those posts at which USIS files were maintained by the post's Central Records Unit. These designations were included in the Culture & Information subject outline.

C. TYPE OF SYSTEM

1. Subject-Numeric System

The new uniform file system was of the subject-numeric type. It was selected because of the flexibility that it provided for expansion purposes and the simplicity of file designations for marking purposes. A mnemonic symbol was selected for each of the fifty-five primary subjects for which file outlines had been developed. These symbols ranged from one to four letters in length and had been chosen because of their meaning or obvious relationship to the subject matter for which they stood. In some cases the symbol was identical with an office symbol (e.g., PPT for Passports & Citizenship, AV for Aviation (Civil)). In other cases the key letters in the primary subject constituted the symbol (e.g., CON for Consular Affairs (General), REF for Refugees & Migration, AGR for Agriculture (General)).

While many small offices used the primary subjects alone, larger offices required further breakdowns of the primary subjects for more detailed subject matter coverage. Simple serial numbers were assigned to subject breakdowns at both the secondary and tertiary level. For example, a paper relating to the subject of agricultural production in general was classified AGR 12; a paper dealing with technological advances in agricultural production was AGR 12-1. The most detailed subdivision contained no more than four digits, making for a relatively simple file designation. Sample Reel Index entries with Subject Numeric Codes are on page xxvii.

2. Use of Identical Numbers for Similar Subject

As an additional aid, the same number was assigned to similar secondary and tertiary subjects appearing in different subject file outlines. In most outlines the first participated. The interests of each office and its responsibility for international organization and conference activities determined the amount of record material that it accumulated and the method by which it arranged material to meet user needs.

An office that had a limited interest in such organizations and conferences and accumulated a relatively small quantity of papers probably found the “3” (Organizations and Conferences) classification within the appropriate subject outline adequate. An office that had a major interest in and responsibility for an organization such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), or the World Health Organization (WHO), however, adopted the method of arrangement described in Instruction “D” (Special Features). Under this arrangement a special subject file by title of organization was set up under the appropriate subject outline, using any of the secondary or tertiary breakdowns as necessary.

The Bureau of International Organization Affairs, special missions to international organizations, and other offices that accumulated a large volume of material on a specific organization or conference used the special instruction method of arrangement. This instruction contained a standard list of administrative subjects common to international organizations and conferences. It also provided a unique method of arranging substantive program material relating to the specific organization or conference by selecting appropriate subjects, permitting an organizational approach within the framework of a uniform subject system.

c. Treatment of Industries and Commodities

Because of the importance of the commercial-economic reporting program, special attention was given to the treatment of industries and commodities under the new file system. Specific subject outlines were developed for the most significant industries, such as Agriculture (General), Fuels & Energy, Petroleum, Telecommunications, and Transportation. With the exception of Agriculture (General), these industry outlines covered the related commodities and products as well.

To take care of the large number of other industries, commodities, products, and specific agricultural crops, an alphabetical guide was developed as an adjunct to the Industries & Commodities (General) outline. This list, referred to as INCO (specific), provided offices with a simple method of filing materials on specific commodities, regardless of whether they were in their natural or manufactured state.

Instructions preceding the alphabetical listing offered users a choice of methods of arrangement within the list. For example, one office may have preferred to group all minerals and metals together while another office may have found it preferable to file by the specific mineral or metal.

2. Detailed Instructions (Miscellaneous)

In addition to the instructions above, alternative methods of arrangement, detailed statements, or explanations of the coverage of specific secondary and tertiary breakdowns of the primary subject were provided on an ad hoc basis. Specific cross-references to related subject matter within the same or in other outlines were also indicated. Classifiers found these instructions useful in determining proper file designations, particularly in the case of subject matter that may not have been familiar to them.

3. Country Symbols

A list of standard country abbreviations was used for coding papers relating to specific countries. See page xvii for list.

SAMPLE REEL INDEX ENTRIES

Entries in this index refer to specific file folders and internal subdivisions within Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, Cuba, February 1963–1966, Part 1: Political, Governmental, and National Defense Affairs. The file folders (in italics) are arranged by the Subject File Outlines noted in the “State Department Records Classification System, February 1963–July 1973,” on page ix. In order to improve access to large groupings of material, UPA has included selected “major topics” (enclosed in brackets) following the subject description. In addition, UPA has subdivided these groupings chronologically, mostly by year, but sometimes monthly.

The four-digit number on the far left represents the frame number at which the file folder begins. The first indented frame number denotes where a specific subject numeric category begins. The final indented frame number represents the point at which a chronological subdivision begins.

These samples provide a detailed description of the arrangement of the information in this guide.

REEL INDEX

The following is a listing of the folders that compose Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files: Cuba, Subject-Numeric Files, February 1963–1966, Part 1: Political, Governmental, and National Defense Affairs. The four-digit number on the far left is the frame at which a particular file folder begins. This is followed by the decimal code and the subject description. Substantive issues are included within brackets.

SUBJECT INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major topics in this microform publication. The first number after each entry refers to the reel, while the four-digit number following the colon refers to the frame number at which a particular file folder containing information on the subject begins. Hence 1: 0724 directs the researcher to the folder that begins at Frame 0724 of Reel 1. By referring to the Reel Index, which constitutes the initial section of this guide, the researcher will find the folder title, inclusive dates, and a list of Major Topics, listed in the order in which they appear in the film.
