DESCRIPTION OF CONTENT

This Index is compiled from the final editions of:

- --AFRO AMERICAN (National Edition)
- --AMSTERDAM NEWS (New York)
- --ARGUS (St. Louis)
- --CALL & POST (Cleveland)
- --CHICAGO DEFENDER (Chicago)
- --DAILY WORLD (Atlanta)
- --JOURNAL & GUIDE (Norfolk)
- --MICHIGAN CHRONICLE (Detroit)
- --SENTINEL (Los Angeles)
- --WORLD MUSLIM NEWS (Chicago)

Local, regional, state, national and international news articles are indexed. The descriptive entry statements attempt to reflect the emphasis given to the news item by the newspaper. In addition to news articles, the Index also includes:

- --Letters to the editor
- --Editorials
- --Editorial cartoons
- --Syndicated editorial opinion columns
- --Unique advertising
- --Reviews of art exhibits, concerts, motion pictures, plays, phonograph records & other forms of entertainment.

Obituaries which appear as news items have been indexed; classified death notices have not. Also omitted are advertisements, vital statistics columns, society personals, routine sports events, announcements of routine social and fraternal meetings, and non-news articles dealing with such subjects as recipes, household hints, personal advice, gardening, hobbies and travel.

Newspaper accounts of criminal proceedings against individuals are rarely indexed. Reports of criminal proceedings against individuals or groups are indexed only if:

- --they are politicians or government officials whose alleged crime is tied to their office or position,
- --they attract extensive national attention because of the nature of the alleged crime,
- --they are prominent people accused of significant crimes.

Victims of crimes and accidents are not indexed unless the notability of the victim and/or the nature of the crime are significant.

Newspaper accounts less than three column inches in length are indexed only if:

- --the news item reports establishment or termination of diplomatic relations,
- --the news item reports a government appointment or confirmation of an appointment,
- --the news item reports passage of legislation.

The Index is divided into two parts: Subjects and Personal Names.

SUBJECTS INDEX

Both general and specific headings are used in this Index. Cross references are provided to guide the user to related or more specific subjects. Corporations, organizations and social institutions are generally filed under the generic subject rather than their individual names, although often-cited corporations, organizations, etc. are filed under their individual names.

The user should be aware that this Index is designed primarily to reflect the news reported in the United States. As such, most reports involving foreign countries will appear under the name of the country but not under the general subject headings. Conversely, most reports involving the United States and its political subdivisions will not appear under the geographic subject heading but, instead, will appear under the subjects(s) of the article. A state, county or city must be the primary subject of the article in order for that story to be indexed under the geographic subject heading.

Divisions of the United States government are treated as subdivisions of the heading "UNITED STATES GOVT--". Most agency names are arranged in natural word order (e.g. UNITED STATES GOVT--FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION). News articles describing government actions on specific subjects are indexed both under the government agency involved and under the general subjects. This provides the user access to both the activities of each unit of the government and a summary, by subject, from many areas of the nation.

Each state in the United States has its own subject heading. A state heading may be further subdivided into government agencies. This is generally limited to the state in which the newspaper being indexed is located.

Cities and counties with larger populations may be included in the Index under their own names, in which case, a cross-reference is provided from the appropriate state to the specific city or county. Most towns, cities and counties within the primary reporting area of the newspaper have their own subject heading and the major city and county have been subdivided into government agencies (e.g. CHICAGO GOVT--MAYOR).

PERSONAL NAMES INDEX

The names portion of the Index contains names of people who appeared in the newspaper for some significant reason. Mere mention of a name is not sufficient reason for inclusion in the Index. Names of columnists and editorial cartoonists are included.

Names are arranged alphabetically by computer sort. Multiple entries for identical personal names are arranged chronologically. The name form used in this Index is that by which the person is cited in the newspaper. An attempt has been made to apply consistency to the names of persons frequently cited in the Index. Transliteration of foreign names is based on the form used by the newspaper, with due attention to patterns of the particular language involved.

Sports and entertainment figures are entered under the name by which they are reported in the newspaper. Nicknames will generally not appear in the name entry unless the individual is more well known by that name.

CITATION

The entry statement, a brief summation of the article content or type, is followed by a two-letter code which indicates the newspaper in which the article appeared. A list of these codes are:

AF	AFRO AMERICAN
AM	AMSTERDAM NEWS
AR	ARGUS
AT	ATLANTA DAILY WORLD
CH	CHICAGO DEFENDER
CP	CALL & POST
JG	JOURNAL & GUIDE
LA	LOS ANGELES SENTINAL
MI	MICHIGAN CHRONICLE
MN	WORLD MUSLIM NEWS

The newspaper code is followed by columns of numbers which indicate the month, day, section, page and column where the article begins in the newspaper.

Supplemental sections which have not been assigned alphabetic or numeric section codes by the newspaper may be assigned special codes by the indexing staff to facilitate indexing and retrieval of the article. These special codes appear in the "Section" column of the citation and are generally a three-letter abbreviation of the section name.

INDEX TO BLACK NEWSPAPERS

I.S.S.N. # 0 1 4 9 - 7 5 0 2

SECOND QUARTER 1982
APRIL, MAY, JUNE

Compiled and published by
THE INDEXING CENTER
MICRO PHOTO DIVISION
BELL & HOWELL COMPANY
Old Mansfield Road
Wooster, Ohio 44691

Copyright 1982 by the Bell & Howell Co.

Printed in the United States of America

DESCRIPTION OF CONTENT

This Index is compiled from the final editions of:

- --AFRO AMERICAN (National Edition)
- --AMSTERDAM NEWS (New York)
- --ARGUS (St. Louis)
- --CALL & POST (Cleveland)
- --CHICAGO DEFENDER (Chicago)
- --DAILY WORLD (Atlanta)
- --JOURNAL & GUIDE (Norfolk)
- --MICHIGAN CHRONICLE (Detroit)
- --SENTINEL (Los Angeles)
- --WORLD MUSLIM NEWS (Chicago)

Local, regional, state, national and international news articles are indexed. The descriptive entry statements attempt to reflect the emphasis given to the news item by the newspaper. In addition to news articles, the Index also includes:

- --Letters to the editor
- --Editorials
- --Editorial cartoons
- --Syndicated editorial opinion columns
- --Unique advertising
- --Reviews of art exhibits, concerts, motion pictures, plays, phonograph records & other forms of entertainment.

Obituaries which appear as news items have been indexed; classified death notices have not. Also omitted are advertisements, vital statistics columns, society personals, routine sports events, announcements of routine social and fraternal meetings, and non-news articles dealing with such subjects as recipes, household hints, personal advice, gardening, hobbies and travel.

Newspaper accounts of criminal proceedings against individuals are rarely indexed. Reports of criminal proceedings against individuals or groups are indexed only if:

- --they are politicians or government officials whose alleged crime is tied to their office or position,
- --they attract extensive national attention because of the nature of the alleged crime,
- --they are prominent people accused of significant crimes.

Victims of crimes and accidents are not indexed unless the notability of the victim and/or the nature of the crime are significant.

Newspaper accounts less than three column inches in length are indexed only if:

- --the news item reports establishment or termination of diplomatic relations,
- --the news item reports a government appointment or confirmation of an appointment,
- --the news item reports passage of legislation.

The Index is divided into two parts: Subjects and Personal Names.

SUBJECTS INDEX

Both general and specific headings are used in this Index. Cross references are provided to guide the user to related or more specific subjects. Corporations, organizations and social institutions are generally filed under the generic subject rather than their individual names, although often-cited corporations, organizations, etc. are filed under their individual names.

The user should be aware that this Index is designed primarily to reflect the news reported in the United States. As such, most reports involving foreign countries will appear under the name of the country but not under the general subject headings. Conversely, most reports involving the United States and its political subdivisions will not appear under the geographic subject heading but, instead, will appear under the subjects(s) of the article. A state, county or city must be the primary subject of the article in order for that story to be indexed under the geographic subject heading.

Divisions of the United States government are treated as subdivisions of the heading "UNITED STATES GOVT--". Most agency names are arranged in natural word order (e.g. UNITED STATES GOVT--FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION). News articles describing government actions on specific subjects are indexed both under the government agency involved and under the general subjects. This provides the user access to both the activities of each unit of the government and a summary, by subject, from many areas of the nation.

Each state in the United States has its own subject heading. A state heading may be further subdivided into government agencies. This is generally limited to the state in which the newspaper being indexed is located.

Cities and counties with larger populations may be included in the Index under their own names, in which case, a cross-reference is provided from the appropriate state to the specific city or county. Most towns, cities and counties within the primary reporting area of the newspaper have their own subject heading and the major city and county have been subdivided into government agencies (e.g. CHICAGO GOVT--MAYOR).

PERSONAL NAMES INDEX

The names portion of the Index contains names of people who appeared in the newspaper for some significant reason. Mere mention of a name is not sufficient reason for inclusion in the Index. Names of columnists and editorial cartoonists are included.

Names are arranged alphabetically by computer sort. Multiple entries for identical personal names are arranged chronologically. The name form used in this Index is that by which the person is cited in the newspaper. An attempt has been made to apply consistency to the names of persons frequently cited in the Index. Transliteration of foreign names is based on the form used by the newspaper, with due attention to patterns of the particular language involved.

Sports and entertainment figures are entered under the name by which they are reported in the newspaper. Nicknames will generally not appear in the name entry unless the individual is more well known by that name.

CITATION

The entry statement, a brief summation of the article content or type, is followed by a two-letter code which indicates the newspaper in which the article appeared. A list of these codes are:

AF	AFRO AMERICAN
AM	AMSTERDAM NEWS
AR	ARGUS
AT	ATLANTA DAILY WORLD
CH	CHICAGO DEFENDER
CP	CALL & POST
JG	JOURNAL & GUIDE
LA	LOS ANGELES SENTINAL
MI	MICHIGAN CHRONICLE
MN	WORLD MUSLIM NEWS

The newspaper code is followed by columns of numbers which indicate the month, day, section, page and column where the article begins in the newspaper.

Supplemental sections which have not been assigned alphabetic or numeric section codes by the newspaper may be assigned special codes by the indexing staff to facilitate indexing and retrieval of the article. These special codes appear in the "Section" column of the citation and are generally a three-letter abbreviation of the section name.
