Just when Hidson first discovered the Americans and Quebec, the Canadian Government turned it on at all the Olympic venues. The perfect orchestration up to the infield at the Olympic Stadium was just fine, but there was more excitement outside the stadium than inside. It started in the semi-finals of the men’s gymnastics, where Argentina bowed out, three straight games to the Czechs as

FEATURED STAND-ALONE CANADIAN NEWS TITLES

These important stand-alone Canadian titles come from two of our most popular news portfolios: ProQuest Historical Newspapers and ProQuest Recent Newspapers. See back cover for full years of coverage.

In an effort to make our digitized newspapers time-liner we will continue to roll back the 90-day content currency delay for most newspaper titles. By the end of 2022, most papers will have a short delay of a week or less.

Montreal Gazette (1785–Recent+)

The Montreal Gazette is Montreal’s only surviving English-language newspaper, as well as the oldest daily still in print in all of Canada. Originally founded as The Gazette, the paper offers much insight into Canadian history in the late 18th century as well as important coverage of international, national, provincial, and local events. The Montreal Gazette is also home to a number of National Newspaper Award winning editorial writers including Edgar A. Codd’s chronicle of the history of Montreal, Henry Aubin’s groundbreaking environmental investigations and award-winning editorial cartoonist “Ardin” (Terry Mosher).

The Gazette (1824–1869)

The Gazette is one of Canada’s oldest newspapers and was founded in 1824. It is known for its coverage of local and national news, as well as its role in shaping public opinion on a wide range of issues.

The Globe and Mail (1844–2018+)

Known as “Canada’s Newspaper of Record,” this newspaper gained a reputation in the postwar era as the conservative voice of the business establishment but over the years has supported such causes as opposition to the Vietnam War and the legalization of marijuana. Regarding same sex relationships, a 1967 editorial argued “[The state] has no right or duty to creep into the bedrooms of the nation,” a sentiment echoed by then-Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau a few weeks later.

Toronto Star (1894–Recent+)

Canada’s highest-circulation newspaper (on weekly circulation), this newspaper had a major influence on the development of the nation’s social policy. It was founded in 1899 by Joseph E. Atkinson who inspired the publication’s on-going commitment to advocating for social justice. Historically, the Toronto Star’s early opposition to the Nazi regime resulted in it being the first North American paper banned by the German government.

Leader-Post (1883–Recent+)

This is the newspaper of Regina, capital of Saskatchewan. Founder Nicolas Flood Davin famously sent reporter Mary McCarden Macdonald, disguised as a francophone clerk, to conduct a jailhouse interview in 1915 with Louis Riel right in front of uncomprehending and unsuspecting anglophone guards. The Trial of Riel, the leader of a resistance movement of First Nations people against the Canadian government, is arguably the most famous in the nation’s history.

Investigate Decades of Local Canadian History

Newspapers provide multiple perspectives of how stories unfolded — and continue to unfold — over years and decades. They reveal local perspectives on regional, national and international affairs providing insight on how everyday lives are impacted and influenced.

THE NEED FOR NEWS

In an era where local news coverage has been on the decline, historical regional papers can transport students and researchers to another time where smaller newspapers served as the informational hub of the community. Stories about neighborhood personalities, town events, city politics, schools, agriculture, commerce and other local business aren’t available anywhere else.

Additionally, regional newspapers reveal local perspectives on national and international affairs for insight on how everyday lives are impacted and influenced by the issues and events that dominate the headlines of major metropolitan papers.

72% of researchers use news today

A 2017 ProQuest study shows that newspapers are a vital tool in research – they’re used by 72% of researchers and recommended by 80% of researchers who teach.

Which of the following types of information do you use in your research?

- Books (print)
