SOUTHERN LIFE, SLAVERY AND THE CIVIL WAR

Slavery, the Slave Trade, and Law and Order in 19th Century America, 1636-1880

This module documents the international and domestic traffic in slaves in Britain’s New World colonies and the United States, providing important primary source material on the business aspect of the slave trade. In addition to records on the slave trade, this module also includes letters received by the Attorney General on other matters concerning the early American legal system. These include letters on relations with American Indians, the exertion of federal authority and letters pertaining to other matters regarding slavery such as enslaved people attempting to escape from bondage, the rights of free Black people, and other legal issues.

Slavery and the Law

This collection of petitions submitted to state legislatures and county courthouses, 1775-1867, reveal amazing candor. Collected by Loren Schweninger from hundreds of courthouses and historical societies, the slavery petitions document the realities of slavery at the most immediate local level. Slavery and the Law also includes the important State Slavery Statutes collection, a comprehensive record of the laws governing American slavery from 1789-1865.

Confederate Military Manuscripts and Records of Union Generals and the Union Army

CHOICE Outstanding Academic Title, 2017

This module delivers manuscripts sourced from Virginia Historical Society, Louisiana State University, University of Texas at Austin; and the University of Virginia. One of the single greatest prizes in this module are the papers of Robert E. Lee, sourced from the Virginia Historical Society. The strength of the Louisiana State University holdings are soldiers’ letters and diaries in the war along the Mississippi River. One of the most important collections in this module from the holdings of University of Texas at Austin is the William Pitt Ballinger Papers. The University of Virginia collections focus on the war in Virginia, documenting virtually every aspect of the war in Virginia and neighboring states. This module also contains unique collections on the Union Army. Highlights of the Union Army records include papers of spies, scouts, guides, and detectives, including a series of records on Allan Pinkerton; records on military discipline from courts-martial, courts of inquiry, and investigations by military commissions; and records of the U.S. Colored Troops.

“Searching [History Vault] helped me to turn up materials I would never have found otherwise. ... History Vault also helped me to look at more records more quickly and thus to get a sense of what was typical and what was exceptional. Surveying many account books also helped me to find collections covering long periods of time. As I read from year-to-year, I could see how practices changed and also trace how they shaped the lives of individual enslaved people.”

— Caitlin Rosenthal, Assistant Professor of History, University of California, Berkeley
Slavery in Antebellum Southern Industries

This module opens a window into the world of enslaved people that no other type of primary documentary evidence affords. While industry never rivaled agriculture as an employer of enslaved labor in the Old South, industrial enterprises kept excellent records, and they survived in depositories like the Duke University Library, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, University of Virginia, and Virginia Historical Society. Slavery in Antebellum Southern Industries presents some of the richest, most valuable and most complete collections in the entire documentary record of American slavery, focusing on the industrial uses of slave labor. These collections document labor by enslaved people in industries ranging from mining to manufacturing to construction. They include company records; business and personal correspondence; documents pertaining to the purchase, hire, medical care and provisioning of enslaved laborers; descriptions of production processes; and journals recounting costs and income. The work ledgers in these collections record slave earnings and expenditures and provide extraordinary insight into the lives of enslaved people.

Reconstruction and Military Government after the Civil War

This module offers remarkable insight into the early Reconstruction period in the American South. The largest portion of the documents in this module consist of Records of the U.S. Army’s Office of Civil Affairs. Attempts to replace any civil officers who had served the Confederacy with loyal Union men are at the heart of the materials in this module. In addition, it contains letters from citizens to the military government on topics such as intimidation and violence, crime, voter registration, law enforcement, corruption and fair administration of the election process. Also included in this module are Letters Received by the Attorney General pertaining to law and order in southern states from 1871-1884 and records of the Freedmen’s Hospital and the Freedman’s Savings and Trust Company.

The Office of Civil Affairs records in this module were previously inaccessible to students and researchers and hold the prospect of allowing new research discoveries on a controversial era and important topics in American History.

CIVIL RIGHTS AND THE BLACK FREEDOM STRUGGLE IN THE 20TH CENTURY

This category consists of the NAACP Papers and Federal Government Records, Organizational Records and Personal Papers regarding the Black Freedom Struggle in the 20th Century. Taken together, these twelve modules offer an extremely strong combination of resources on the civil rights movement with major collections of records from the NAACP, Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), and African American Police League. The Library Journal selected the NAACP Papers modules as a Best Reference Pick in March 2015.

African American Police League Records

Recent cases such as the shooting of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri and the Black Lives Matter movement have brought the issue of police brutality onto the front page. However, police brutality has a long and troubled history. This module documents how African American policemen in Chicago, beginning in 1968, attempted to fight against discrimination and police brutality by the Chicago Police Department and to improve relations between African Americans and police. Researchers will find a wealth of resources from the African American Police League, including annual reports, court files, meeting minutes, correspondence, clippings, topical files, newsletters, police brutality files, and publications and flyers covering the work of the AAPL and its education and action arm, the League to Improve the Community. The collection also contains items on numerous law enforcement and civil rights organizations across the country, materials on the suspension of AAPL executive director Renault Robinson from the Chicago Police Department and related lawsuits; and materials pertaining to the National Black Police Association.

Goals of the Afro-American Patrolmen’s League, 1973. The organization later changed its name to the African American Police League.
Black Freedom Struggle in the 20th Century

The Black Freedom Struggle in the 20th Century consists of four modules: two modules of Federal Government Records, and two modules of Organizational Records and Personal Papers, offering unique documentation and a variety of perspectives on the 20th century fight for freedom.

- Black Freedom Struggle in the 20th Century: Federal Government Records focuses on the political side of the freedom movement, the role of civil rights organizations in pushing for civil rights legislation, and the interaction between African Americans and the federal government in the 20th century. Major collections in this module include the FBI Files on Martin Luther King Jr.; Centers of the Southern Struggle; and civil rights records from the Kennedy, Johnson, and Nixon administrations.

- Black Freedom Struggle in the 20th Century: Federal Government Records, Supplement adds civil rights records from the Ford and Reagan presidencies. With the records in this module, the two Federal Government Records modules in History Vault contain presidential records on civil rights from the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration through the George H. W. Bush administration.

- Black Freedom Struggle in the 20th Century, Organizational Records and Personal Papers, Part 1, is highlighted by records of three major civil rights organizations: the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and the National Association of Colored Women's Clubs. Papers of civil rights leaders included in this module are those of labor leader A. Philip Randolph; the organizer of the March on Washington, Bayard Rustin; and of the pioneering educator Mary McLeod Bethune. Records of Claude A. Barnett's Associated Negro Press cover topics such as religion, sports, education, fraternal organizations, and even the field of entertainment.

- Black Freedom Struggle of the 20th Century: Organizational Records and Personal Papers, Part 2, is highlighted by the records of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), the Africa-related papers of Claude Barnett, and the Robert F. Williams Papers. With the addition of SNCC and CORE records, History Vault includes SNCC, SCLC, CORE, and NAACP records, the four most important civil rights organizations of the 1950s and 1960s.

NAACP Papers

The NAACP Papers collection consists of 6 modules, containing internal memos, legal briefings and detailed activity summaries from national, legal and branch offices throughout the country. With a timeline that runs from 1909 to 1972, the NAACP Papers document the realities of segregation in the early 20th century to the triumphs of the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and beyond. With these files, researchers can trace the major concerns of the NAACP from year to year; the major campaigns of the NAACP in areas like education, voting rights, anti-lynching legislation and criminal justice; and the amazing branch network of the organization. The Branch Department files contain detailed files on 34 states and 181 branches and branch activities reports from 571 branches in 48 states plus the District of Columbia.

"One of [History Vault's] best features is the ability to search across the entire database. I would not have known to search for materials within the A. Philip Randolph Papers, for example, for Randolph was uninvolved in the VEP. And yet, through my keywords search, VEP-related materials popped up in his collection."

— Evan Faulkenbury, Assistant Professor of History, SUNY Cortland

The six NAACP Papers modules are:

- NAACP Papers – Board of Directors, Annual Conferences, Major Speeches, and National Staff Files (annual conference resolutions and speeches are excellent source for studying the major issues of importance to the NAACP from year to year)
- NAACP Papers – The NAACP’s Major Campaigns: Education, Voting, Housing, Employment, Armed Forces
- NAACP Papers – The NAACP’s Major Campaigns: Scottsboro, Anti-Lynching, Criminal Justice, Peonage, Labor, and Segregation and Discrimination Complaints and Responses
- NAACP Papers – The NAACP’s Major Campaigns: Legal Department Files (featuring over 600 cases from 34 states)
- NAACP Papers: Special Subjects
- NAACP Papers: Branch Department, Branch Files, and Youth Department Files (offering excellent documentation on the local heroes of the civil rights movement throughout the United States)

Reverend J. H. Jackson and the National Baptist Convention, 1900-1990

Reverend Joseph H. Jackson was the longest-serving president of the National Baptist Convention, serving in that role from 1953-1982, and pastor at Olivet Baptist Church on Chicago’s South Side from 1941 until his death in 1990. During his presidency of the National Baptist Convention, at the height of the civil rights movement in the 1950s and 1960s, Jackson spoke about the importance of loyalty to the federal government and emphasized the ballot as the strongest weapon in obtaining civil rights. Jackson’s stance put him in conflict with other Baptist leaders, including Martin Luther King, Jr., who favored nonviolent civil disobedience to achieve civil rights reforms. The Jackson Papers span from 1889-2003 but focus on the period from 1950-1990. A major series of National Baptist Convention records includes Jackson’s correspondence during his time as the organization’s president, minutes of meetings, Jackson’s annual addresses to the National Baptist Convention, and some of his writings on civil rights and civil disobedience. The collection also includes a major series of Jackson sermons from 1928-1988, and personal records focused on his years as a graduate student from 1925-1945.

Latino Civil Rights during the Carter Administration

Latino Civil Rights during the Carter Administration gives rich insight into the efforts of the Executive Branch of U.S. government to reach out to the burgeoning Latino population during the last 2 years of the Carter Administration. In the summer of 1979, the Carter Administration created the White House Office of Hispanic Affairs in order to address issues of critical importance to the Latino community. The coming decade of the 1980s was being hailed as “the Decade of the Hispanic,” and many were looking to the president and Congress to show more respect for Latinos and their manifold contributions to the United States. Major topics covered in this collection include inflation, bilingual education, police brutality, political unrest in Latin America, Haitian refugees, and immigration (legal and otherwise), Puerto Rican self-determination, and the U.S. Army’s use of Vieques Island. Latino Civil Rights during the Carter Administration also documents some of the most important Latino organizations of the time, including LULAC, TELACU, La Raza, the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund, the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund, and the American G.I. Forum.

COMING IN Q4 2023!

From 1717 through 1836, the governments of Spain and Mexico collected in San Antonio de Bexar (when that city was the capital of Texas under Spanish and Mexican rule) an amazing series of official documents detailing the military, civilian, and political life of the Spanish province of Texas and the Mexican state of Coahuila y Texas. These records, which have become known as the Bexar Archives, constitute the most complete and detailed primary source in existence for the study of colonial Texas. Having formerly worked together on a microfilm version, now, in cooperation with the Center for American History at the University of Texas at Austin, ProQuest is digitizing the Bexar Archives in History Vault. This collection consists of 250,000 pages of manuscript documentation and more than 4,000 pages of printed material on colonial and regional history.

The scope of the documentation contained in the Bexar Archives is as vast as the territory whose affairs it recorded. The earliest documents deal mainly with the affairs of the Caney Island settlers, religious matters, and relations with Native Americans. At the opening of the 19th century, friction along the Texas-Louisiana border, Anglo-American incursions, smuggling, and troubles over Indian raids and atrocities become prominent topics. The Mexican revolution of 1810, with its counterpart in Texas the following year, is vividly recorded, as are the Gutierrez-Magee invasion of 1812-1813, the battle of Medina in 1813, the Champ D’Asile incident in 1818, Dr. Long’s expedition in 1819, the coming of Moses Austin in 1820, the Mexican independent regime in 1821, the Fredonian Rebellion in Nacogdoches in 1827, and, finally, the independence of Texas in 1836. In addition to covering the high points of Texas history, it also documents virtually all aspects of life in Spanish and Mexican Texas.

ProQuest History Vault
Margaret Sanger Papers

Margaret Sanger (1879-1966) was the principal founder and lifelong leader of the American and the international birth control movements. The Margaret Sanger Papers covers every aspect of the birth control movement, including the movement’s changing ideologies, its campaign for legitimacy and its internal conflicts and organizational growth. These papers also provide significant insight on the history of changing attitudes towards women's roles and sexuality, and have significant research value to the fields of women's history, social and intellectual history, medicine and public health, religion, and world economic development, among others.

Struggle for Women's Rights, 1880-1990: Organizational Records

This module is comprised of records of three important women’s rights organizations: the National Woman’s Party (NWP), the League of Women Voters and the Women’s Action Alliance. The importance of the NWP as a women’s rights group fighting for the suffrage amendment and then supporting the ERA cannot be understated. The NWP’s activist approach and aggressive campaign for the right to vote was unique among suffrage organizations – and its use of nonviolent protest methods arguably set important precedents for later social movements pressing for equal rights. The NWP collection contains detailed correspondence and documentation of its voting rights efforts from 1913-1920. The League of Women Voters grew out of a rival organization of the NWP. This collection documents almost every facet of women’s involvement in U.S. politics from 1920-1974. The Women’s Action Alliance, established in 1971 as a grass-roots organization, concerned itself with issues such as employment, childcare, healthcare and education.

Women’s Studies Manuscript Collections from the Schlesinger Library: Voting Rights, National Politics, and Reproductive Rights

Women at Work during World War II: Rosie the Riveter and the Women’s Army Corps

Women at Work during World War II consists of two major sets of records documenting the experience of American women during that era: Records of the Women’s Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor and Correspondence of the Director of the Women’s Army Corps. The first set documents the Women’s Bureau as an investigative agency and a source of public information and education to promote the welfare of wage-earning women. It also includes a detailed study on the treatment of women by unions in several Midwestern industrial towns, with additional documents on women’s work in war industries pertaining to issues like equal pay and child care.

Women in the U.S. Military, Correspondence of the Director of the Women’s Army Corps, 1942–1946 documents the women who joined and served in the Women’s Army Corps (WAC, known as the Women’s Army Auxiliary Corps [WAAC] from May 1942 until July 1943) during World War II. These documents provide insight on issues such as recruiting, public support for the WAC, personnel matters like discipline and conduct, education, gender roles and race.

The Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage changed its name to the National Woman’s Party in 1917. The National Woman’s Party collection contains detailed correspondence and documentation of its voting rights efforts from 1913-1920.
Southern Women and their Families in the 19th and 20th Centuries, Holdings of the Southern Historical Collection, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, 1671-1979

Seen through women’s eyes, studies of 19th century southern social history takes on new dimensions. Women’s letters dwell heavily on illness, pregnancy, and childbirth. From them we can learn what it was like to live in a society in which very few diseases are well understood, in which death was common among all age groups, and infant mortality was an accepted fact of life. The years of the Civil War are particularly well documented since many women were convinced that they were living through momentous historical events of which they should make a record. These records add significantly to our understanding of the 19th century South and will be useful to the student of almost any aspect of southern culture and society.

Revolutionary War and Early America

Revolutionary War and Early America: Collections from Massachusetts Historical Society

American Politics and Society

Thomas A. Edison Papers

Pinkerton’s National Detective Agency Records

During its colorful 150-year history, Pinkerton’s National Detective Agency, the oldest company of private investigators in the United States — founded by Allan Pinkerton in the 1850s — pursued some of the nation’s most notorious criminals, like Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, Jesse James, Alfred Brady, John Dillinger and countless others. This fascinating collection, digitized in History Vault from the Library of Congress holdings, includes files on some of the Pinkerton’s most well-known cases. It offers exciting research opportunities in criminology, sociology, the history of law enforcement and labor relations.

The Pinkerton’s National Detective Agency records include a large series of reward notices. These notices cover criminals throughout the United States and show that Pinkerton operatives were on the trail of forgers, swindlers, murderers, bank robbers, and jewelry thieves.

Law and Society since the Civil War: American Legal Manuscripts from the Harvard Law School Library

Eleven collections from the Harvard Law School Library highlight Supreme Court Justices Oliver Wendell Holmes, Louis D. Brandeis and Felix Frankfurter; the first Black federal judge, William H. Hastie; and the high-profile Sacco-Vanzetti murder case. The Frankfurter Papers are of special note because they reveal how the Court approached the historic Brown v. Board of Education decision.
Progressive Era: Robert M. La Follette Papers

Congressman, Governor, and United States Senator, Robert Marion La Follette is one of the crucial figures of the Progressive Movement of the early twentieth century. This collection documents his early career in the political reform movement from 1879 to 1910.

During these years, La Follette emerged as the powerful leader of the reform coalition which was struggling with the state's large economic interests for control of the government. In 1901 the reformers won control of the state Republican party, and La Follette began the first of his three terms as governor.

La Follette's papers focus on his fight to reform corruption and injustice in the political system of the state of Wisconsin. They include correspondence with Andrew Carnegie, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, and other major figures.

Progressive Era: Voices of Reform

This module joins the growing sets of records in History Vault on the Progressive Era, one of the major reform eras in American History. The collections in this module consist of the correspondence, writings, speeches, diaries and photographs of five leading members of the Progressive movement: John R. Commons, Charles R. Van Hise, Richard T. Ely, Edward A. Ross and Charles McCarthy. Individually and collectively, these men proved they were more than idealists by devising and carrying out major reforms to solve the problems caused by the growth of industrialization following the Civil War. This module offers valuable insight into both the theorizing and practical legislation of the Progressive Era.

Temperance and Prohibition Movement, 1830-1933

The temperance and prohibition movement constituted an important element in American political life and its significance as a vital force in American social history during the late 19th and early 20th centuries. This module contains records and publications of the principal organizations which sought to reduce and ultimately to eliminate the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages in the United States. The two largest organizational collections in the module are the Anti-Saloon League of America (A.S.L.A.) and the records of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union (W.C.T.U.) The papers of individuals prominent in the movement are included as well.
Immigration: Records of the INS, 1880-1930

The massive immigration wave at the turn of the 20th century is investigated. Files cover Asian immigration, particularly Chinese and Japanese, to California and Hawaii; Mexican immigration 1906-1930; and European immigration. There are also extensive files on the regulation of prostitution and white slavery and on suppression of radical aliens.

Records of the Children’s Bureau, 1912-1969

Though it's one of the lesser-known federal agencies, the Children’s Bureau is one of the richest sources for understanding American society and social welfare. The Bureau’s correspondence, research reports, radio scripts, brochures, bills and laws, court hearings and speeches represent the largest collection of primary material for the study of the family and the health and well-being of children in the 20th century; as well, they throw a fascinating light on the way welfare policies affected women.

New Deal and World War II: President Franklin D. Roosevelt’s Office Files and Records of Federal Agencies

The centerpiece of this module is Franklin D. Roosevelt’s Office Files, which highlight domestic and foreign concerns that were of special importance to the president. Additional collections include FBI Reports of the Roosevelt White House; Civilian Conservation Corps Press Releases; Records of the Committee on Economic Security; Department of Treasury records; and a set of documentary records on the Roosevelt presidency covering 50 important episodes and themes.

Japanese American Incarceration: Records of the War Relocation Authority, 1942-1946

Following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and the U.S. entry into World War II in December 1941, the Roosevelt administration decided that for reasons of “military necessity,” the government would evacuate all persons of Japanese heritage from the West Coast states. The Records of the War Relocation Authority document the day-to-day running of the 10 relocation camps from 1942-1946. The collection is organized by relocation center. Records include reports and correspondence on issues such as security, education, health, vocational training, agriculture, food, and family welfare.

FBI Confidential Files and Radical Politics in the U.S., 1945-1972

Under the leadership of J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI investigated and tracked the activities of Communist groups, Communist-front groups and other radical organizations in the United States. Module highlights include Hoover’s office files; documentation on “black bag jobs,” as they were called before being renamed “surreptitious entries”; and the “Do Not File” collection – numerous records that were supposed to be destroyed but survived. These documents provide insight into FBI policies and priorities, the scope of investigations of subversives, the purposes of investigations of liberal and conservative activists, and the bureau’s relationships with other intelligence agencies.

American Politics in the Early Cold War—Truman and Eisenhower Administrations, 1945-1961

The Cold War takes center stage in the Truman files on international relations, and the stalling of Truman’s Fair Deal program are documented in the files that pertain to domestic concerns. The Eisenhower files focus on national defense, Cold War preparedness, the Soviet Union, economic issues, and tariff negotiations. With the publication of this module, History Vault will include, in different modules, White House files for the presidents from Franklin D. Roosevelt through Richard M. Nixon.

“This database was a powerful way for students to see early immigration history through the actual documents and to see how people resisted even when they didn’t have equal rights or citizenship. .... One student commented, ‘I thought that I hated history until I did this project and it’s kind of cool. I really felt like a historian, which was a new experience for me as I’m in computer science.’ A lot of students were excited to see these old documents firsthand and described how neat it was to see them digitized in a way that captured everything, even the handwritten notes. They were blown away that they had access to these hundred-year-old documents.”

— Professor Susie Woo, Associate Professor of American Studies at California State University, describing how her students reacted to using Immigration: Records of the INS in her American Immigrant Cultures class
At a conference of prominent American liberals and labor leaders held in New York City on May 9-10, 1941, the Union for Democratic Action (UDA) was formally organized, with James Loeb Jr. as executive secretary, Reinhold Niebuhr as national chairman, and Frank Kingdon as president. The purpose of the new organization was to initiate a two-front fight against fascism, both at home and abroad. After World War II and the November 1946 elections, James Loeb Jr., national director of UDA, joined by Leon Henderson, Wilson W. Wyatt, Hubert H. Humphrey, and others, called for a convention of democratic progressives to meet in Washington, D.C., on January 4, 1947. Two days later, they formed Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) with James Loeb Jr., as national executive secretary. Among the ADA founders were Wilson Wyatt, first national chairman, Leon Henderson, Hubert H. Humphrey, Eleanor Roosevelt, Joseph P. Lash, Will Rogers Jr., Joseph L. Rauh Jr., Walter Reuther, James B. Carey, David Dubinsky, Walter White, Reinhold Niebuhr, and Herbert H. Lehman. The ADA established itself as a strong national, independent, liberal organization based on American tradition. It proclaimed itself to be an organization for progressive individuals dedicated to the achievement of freedom and economic security for all people everywhere, through education and democratic action. The Americans for Democratic Action Records trace the evolution of the organization as it supported civil rights, the united international control of atomic energy, and global democracy. The collection contains records of campaigns on vital issues such as equal rights, disarmament, the Vietnam War, inflation, and unemployment.

The Americans for Democratic Action Records include issues of the organization's publication, ADA World.

“ProQuest History Vault impressed me deeply. I use a lot of historical databases, but this one stands out as one of the best and most user-friendly I’ve encountered. Revisiting digitized VVAV documents, I saw much that was familiar, but I also encountered a lot of new sources that hadn’t yet been made accessible to archivists when I was doing my research back in the 1990s. ... There are still so many hidden histories that await the light of day, and the curious eyes of young historians.”

WORKERS, LABOR UNIONS, PROGRESSIVES, AND RADICALS

Labor Unions in the U.S., 1862-1974: Knights of Labor, AFL, CIO, and AFL-CIO

Unique, important documentation on the growth and transformation of four major labor organizations takes history, business and other research topics in exciting new directions.

- In the 19th century, the Knights of Labor was the first national labor force to recruit women and African Americans as a matter of policy, to organize throughout the country, and to attempt to unify industrial and agrarian workers. This module presents the papers of executives Terence V. Powderly and John W. Hayes, which span the life of this powerful organization.

- In 1886, the founding convention of the American Federation of Labor (AFL) elected five men to lead an organization of fewer than 200,000 members. AFL records illuminate years of strikes and boycotts, competition with rival organizations, political developments, antitrust laws, pensions, and the direct election of U.S. senators; plus internal AFL matters such as membership, relations with international and local unions, and state labor federations.

- The CIO was at the center of labor activism from 1935 to 1955 – years characterized by mass organizing, nationwide strikes, and bitter ideological and political conflict. The records in this module consist of Minutes of the Executive Board of the CIO and the papers of Adolph Germer, a longtime member of the United Mine Workers and a leader in the formation of the CIO. Records that document the AFL-CIO in this module consist of State Labor Proceedings for 1885-1974 with the 1955-1974 portion of the records pertaining to the AFL-CIO.

Socialist Party of America Papers

Of the many socialist organizations born during the late 19th and 20th centuries, the Socialist Party of America was perhaps the most well-known. With the Socialist Party of America Papers, students will find valuable primary sources for the study of the labor movement, civil rights, anti-war activities and the history of the “American left.” The Socialist Party of America Papers provide an exceptional historical overview of the Socialist Party of America as it struggled to gain support and realize its goals. Documents in the collection include correspondence, position papers, memoranda, financial records, pamphlets and broadsides, and leaflets. This outstanding collection is a must for historical research into American Socialism, labor and leftist thought in the 20th Century.

Why Should a poor man vote the rich man’s ticket?

Vote for NORMAN THOMAS and JAMES H. MAURER and the straight SOCIALIST ticket to help bring a new system in which all the people will collectively own the industries and operate them for use of the producers.

Workers, Labor Unions, and the American Left in the 20th Century: Federal Records

Key collections emphasize the interaction between workers and the federal government. The Wilson Administration Files consist of Papers of the National War Labor Board, Papers of the President’s Mediation Commission, and Records of the U.S. Commission on Industrial Relations. Government surveillance files consist of U.S. Military Intelligence Reports on radicals and Department of Justice investigations of the Industrial Workers of the World, the Communist Party and the use of military force by the federal government in domestic disturbances. Other collections cover unemployment relief, farm tenancy, labor strife during World War II, and records on migratory labor in the 1950s and 1960s.

“The Powderly papers are of particular value from the leadership point of view, especially during the height of the Knights’ influence in the mid-1880s, while the Hayes papers are more useful revealing the Knights’ activity on the local level. Hayes’ files on Knights’ local [branches] are an often-overlooked minor treasure. ... These are crucial collections for any understanding of American labor history, with major relevance in 2018.”

— William John Shepherd, Catholic University of America
American Federation of Labor Records: The Samuel Gompers Era, 1877-1937

Samuel Gompers was the founder and long-serving president of the American Federation of Labor (AFL). During Gompers’ tenure as president of the AFL, membership in the AFL grew from about 50,000 members in 1886 to close to 3 million members by the time of Gompers’ death in 1924. Throughout his career, Gompers championed the craft or trade union approach in which workers were organized into unions based on the trade they worked in. Gompers lobbied for better working conditions and higher wages, worked to unify the labor movement in the United States and abroad, and he also opposed socialism and immigration, sometimes backing his opposition to immigration by invoking racist stereotypes.

In this collection, sourced by ProQuest from the holdings of the AFL-CIO Library now at the University of Maryland, College Park, and the Wisconsin Historical Society, the documents throw light on the momentous struggles within the American labor movement during and just after the Samuel Gompers era. The collection includes correspondence, executive council records, newspaper clippings, convention records, speeches, writings, and legal documents, including court records. Major topics covered in the collection include the 1906 Labor’s Bill of Grievances; the AFL and World War I; union jurisdiction disputes; strikes and lockouts, including the Butte, Montana strikes; and the AFL’s political and legislative interests such as labor and immigration law.

Labor Priests: Progressive Politics and the Catholic Church, John A. Ryan Papers, 1892-1945

John A. Ryan was the foremost social justice advocate and theoretician in the Catholic Church during the first half in the 20th century. Ryan was a Professor of Political Science and Professor of Moral Theology at the Catholic University of America from 1915 until 1939 and Director of the National Catholic Welfare Council’s Social Action Department during its first 25 years, from 1920 until his death in 1945. Ryan’s relationship with President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the New Deal both personally and politically garnered him the nickname “Right Reverend New Dealer.” The John A. Ryan Papers span from 1892 to 1945, with a heavy focus on the last twenty years of his life, 1925 to 1945. Most of the collection consists of Ryan’s correspondence, focusing on the Catholic Church, politics, and Ryan’s writings, speaking engagements, and personal matters. The Ryan Papers also include articles, sermons, reports, pamphlets, lecture notes, scrapbooks, and a personal journal.

Sketch of John A. Ryan included in a pamphlet called “Socialism: Promise or Menace?” The pamphlet is a debate between John A. Ryan and Socialist Party of America leader Morris Hillquit. In the debate, from October 1913, Ryan discusses his deep concerns with socialism and proposes alternative programs to improve labor conditions in the United States.
INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS AND MILITARY CONFLICTS

World War I: British Foreign Office Political Correspondence

Early records in the collection describe the political situation in European countries on the outbreak of the war, as reported by military attaches and diplomatic and consular personnel. These early records also cover the financial position of the warring countries and even anti-war sentiments in 1914.

The documents also examine the technological innovations of World War I, particularly in air and naval warfare. Additionally, this formerly confidential correspondence covers a wide range of other wartime issues, such as birth rates, the role of women in the war, food supply, Zionism, and the Vatican.

The files conclude with detailed coverage of various peace efforts and the armistice, as well as postwar issues such as redrawing the map of Europe, and the consequences of the war for Germany.

U.S. Military Intelligence Reports

U.S. Military Intelligence Reports offer comprehensive documentation of developments and events in the key nations of the world during the period from World War I to the final campaigns of World War II.

After World War I, the U.S. military developed a sophisticated intelligence gathering capability. Concerned with much more than strictly military intelligence, American military attaches and their staffs reported on a wide range of topics, including the internal politics, social and economic conditions and foreign affairs of the countries in which they were stationed.

This module contains reports for China, Japan, France, Germany, Italy, Argentina, Mexico, Soviet Union, Biweekly Intelligence Summaries and Combat Estimates.

U.S. Diplomatic Post Records, 1914-1945

The State Department Diplomatic post records consist of correspondence and reports from American diplomats stationed around the world. Diplomatic post records are those kept at the embassies or legations rather than those kept in Washington. These materials contain the incoming messages from Washington, retained copies of outgoing dispatches, locally gathered information and background material on decision making. The following countries or cities are represented in this module: Japan; Cuba; El Salvador; Honduras; Nicaragua; Iran; Iraq; Beirut; Jerusalem; Aden; Lebanon; Russia; and the Soviet Union.

World War I: Records of the American Expeditionary Forces, and Diplomacy in the World War I Era

This module offers extensive documentation on the American Expeditionary Forces (AEF) during World War I as well as materials on U.S. intelligence operations and the post-war peace process. AEF documents consist of correspondence, cablegrams, operations reports, statistical strength reports and summaries of intelligence detailing troop movements and operations of Allied and enemy forces. The vast majority of the AEF documents date from April 26, 1917-July 2, 1919.

Other notable collections include Select Reports of the American Commission to Negotiate Peace and Reparations Papers of the Allied Powers Reparations Commission, and Records of the Conference on Limitation of Armament, 1921-1922. Finally, this module includes an important collection on diplomacy and the intelligence work of the U.S. State Department during World War I and in the decade after: State Department Collection of Intelligence, 1915-1927: Records of the Office of the Counselor, Undersecretary of State, and the Chief Special Agent.
World War II: U.S. Documents on Planning, Operations, Intelligence, Axis War Crimes, and Refugees

The collections in this module document the innermost workings of the top level of military planning during World War II in President Franklin D. Roosevelt’s Map Room Files and Records of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The Office of War Information Papers contain information on the U.S. home front, as do records on the internment of Japanese civilians. World War II Combat Interviews offer firsthand accounts from the perspective of the individual soldiers who participated in the D-Day invasion. The Papers of the War Refugee Board provide documentation on the fate of civilians in Europe with a special focus on Jewish refugees. Other collections in this module include FBI Files on Tokyo Rose, Manhattan Project documents, Potsdam Conference Documents, and records on lend-lease.

Creation of Israel: British Foreign Office Correspondence on Palestine and Transjordan, 1940-1948

These files are essential for understanding the modern history of the Middle East, the establishment of Israel as a sovereign state and the wider web of postwar international world politics. Early records in the collection focus on events in Palestine, Britain’s policy toward Palestine and how the situation in Palestine affected relations with other nations. The files also survey the contours of Arab politics in the wider Middle East. Since the interests, rivalries and designs of various Arab leaders were often played out with reference to Palestine, the documents provide insight into the complex and sometimes bloody Arab world. In the 1947-1948 period, this module explores the tensions within Anglo-American relations over the creation and recognition of Israel as a sovereign state. A large section of the material is devoted to United Nations deliberations on the Palestine question. The records also illuminate the political, philosophical and personal fractures within and between both the Jewish and Arab communities from 1940-1948.

Office of Strategic Services (OSS)-State Department Intelligence and Research Reports, 1941-1961

During World War II and the first decade and a half of the Cold War, the Office of Strategic Services and the State Department assigned leading scholars to write special, classified reports about Asia, Europe, the Soviet Union, Latin America, and Africa. At the time, the reports helped to shape U.S. foreign policy decisions, and, now, as part of History Vault, the over 3,500 reports in this module provide an excellent source for studying the major areas of the World during the period from 1941 to 1961. These reports are not contained in the State Department’s foreign relations series or the armed forces’ official histories.

Naval Message, December 7, 1941, from the Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet, announcing “enemy air raids on fleet at Pearl Harbor. Damage known to be great.” Map Room Files of President Roosevelt, 1939-1945: Map Room Army and Navy Messages, December 1941-May 1942.

Nazi Looted Art and Assets: Records on the Post-World War II Restitution Process

This module focuses on the diplomatic, legal and political maneuvering during and after World War II regarding German art looting in Europe, recovery of cultural objects dispersed during World War II, efforts by the U.S. and other Allied Powers to prevent the secreting of Axis assets, claims from victims for financial or property restitution from the Federal Republic of Germany (FRG), other claims cases, and meeting minutes and background materials regarding the Tripartite Commission for the Restitution of Monetary Gold.

Confidential U.S. State Department and Diplomatic Post Special Files, Asia, 1945–1966

COMING IN Q2 2023! The Confidential U.S. State Department “Special” or “Lot” Files represent a rich source for students of American foreign policy. Focusing on political affairs, economic conditions, and policy positions, these documents complement the State Department Central Files and form a foundation for in-depth study of international affairs. Maintained by various State Department offices, bureaus, committees, and individuals, the Special Files hold a vast amount of unique material not preserved in the Central Files. They provide an especially valuable source for working papers, annotated memoranda, verbatim transcripts, drafts, and other informal material. Further, the Special Files often contain documents State Department officials considered too sensitive or important to forward to the general Central Files. The set of State Department and Diplomatic Post records covers the U.S. occupation of Japan following World War II, development of postwar Japan, the San Francisco Peace Conference of 1951, and economic conditions in Japan; the Korean War, peace negotiations, U.S.-Korea relations, and the rebuilding of South Korea after the end of fighting in the Korean War; military and economic relations between Japan, Korea, and the U.S. in the 1950s; ANZUS treaty talks with Australia and New Zealand; Nationalist and anti-colonial resistance movements in Vietnam, Indonesia, and Malaya; and efforts to establish a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Joint Chiefs of Staff in the Early Cold War, 1946–1960

COMING IN Q2 2023! As the principal group of military advisers to the president of the United States, the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) is arguably the most important body of military leaders in the world. Records of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the Early Cold War contains the formerly classified and secret proposals that, when approved by the president, became the military and foreign policies of the United States. These records offer a behind-the-scenes view of the highest levels of U.S. military decision-making. The reports in this module were written by hundreds of JCS staff members–experts in fields ranging from Chinese defense strategy to U.S. military counterintelligence.

The records of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for 1946-1960 cover the early years of the Cold War, focusing on the threat of Soviet expansion, Europe and NATO, the Chinese Civil War, the Korean War, the beginnings of the nuclear arms race, and the Arab-Israeli conflict and other developments in the Middle East, especially regarding Middle East oil and Iran.

Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, 1960-1969

Student demonstrations, political unrest, coups d'etat, assassinations, political trials, meetings and visits of foreign leaders, economic and agricultural assistance, disputes over the use of international waters, international trade, military conflicts - these are just some of the subjects covered by Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files on the turbulent 1960s around the world.

Concentrating exclusively on those U.S. State Department Central Files that have not been microfilmed by the National Archives or distributed by other publishers, this collection contains a wide range of materials from U.S. diplomats in foreign countries: reports on political, military and socioeconomic matters; interviews and minutes of meetings with foreign government officials; important letters, instructions, and cables sent and received by U.S. diplomatic personnel; and reports and translations from foreign journals and newspapers.

History Vault’s U.S. State Department Central Files on the 1960s are offered in three modules, organized by geographic region of the world: Europe and Latin America; Africa and the Middle East; and Asia.

Vietnam War and American Foreign Policy, 1960–1975
This module features the records of the Associated Press’s Saigon Bureau. Over 40 years ago, as Saigon was falling to the communists and the U.S. was evacuating Vietnam, Peter Arnett saved the records of the AP’s Saigon Bureau and brought them back to the United States. Until ProQuest scanned them and digitized them in History Vault, they were never before available to the public. Other key collections in this module include records of the Military Assistance and Advisory Command, Vietnam (MACV); General William Westmoreland Papers, and National Security Files from the Kennedy, Nixon, and Ford administrations.

“It’s easy to forget facts but it’s hard to forget an assignment or a moment where you really learn something. And I think a well-designed archival assignment can help a student really learn something. Because they weren’t fed that information, they had to construct that information themselves.”
— Dr. L. Maria Bo, Assistant Professor in the Department of English, Comparative Literature, and Linguistics at California State University, commenting on the student reaction to an assignment in her Introduction to Asian Literature course using the History Vault module: Vietnam War and American Foreign Policy

“Vietnam War and American Foreign Policy, 1960–1975” and “American Politics and Society from JFK to Watergate, 1960–1975” are sister modules revealing two faces of a tumultuous era: American foreign and domestic policy. Whether together or apart, these modules provide researchers with “a fascinating look into American government decision making and the reaction of the American people to those decisions. Highly recommended.”
— J. Stoehr, CHOICE
