In-depth reporting on the issues that matter to Long Islanders

SERVING THE DAY-TO-DAY needs of its diverse readership, Newsday is an American daily newspaper that has several historic editions including Long Island’s Nassau and Suffolk counties.

Suffolk County is New York’s largest county (outside of New York City) and the leading agricultural producer in New York State. Newsday – Suffolk Edition gives insight into Suffolk County’s economy, which is a mix of industry, science, agriculture, and tourism. Read stories about a new locally owned ice cream shop, scientific innovations at Brookhaven National Lab, or the latest on where the striped bass are biting.

Newsday has won 19 Pulitzer Prizes in the areas of editorials, commentaries, investigative reporting, editorial cartooning, and international reporting, and has been a finalist for 20 more. With Newsday – Suffolk Edition support research and learning of key issues and events, including:

- Aftermath of the Great Depression
- Aviation industry
- Changing laws and regulations of the fishing industry
- Crime and corruption on Long Island
- Growth of the agricultural and wine industry
- Immigration
- Narcotics in the United States and abroad
- News and media
- The evolution and growth of suburbia and planned communities post WWII
- The Hamptons as a tourist and celebrity destination
- World War II and the aftermath
