INTRODUCTION

This pamphlet and the four reels of microfilm that it accompanies represent Part II of the Microfilms of the Mather Papers, a joint publication of the American Antiquarian Society and the Massachusetts Historical Society. Part I: The Papers of Cotton Mather (nineteen reels of microfilm) was completed in 1971.

The purpose of the microfilm edition of the Mather Papers is to disseminate widely important source material for the study of early New England history and, at the same time, to protect the original documents, through the existence of multiple copies, from damage or loss.

The Guide to the Microfilm Edition of the Increase Mather Papers consists of a chronology of important events in the life of Mather; biographical material and a note on recent writings about him; information on the provenance of the papers; a statement of the editorial procedure followed in the preparation of the microfilm edition; and a brief description of the contents of the papers.

1723. Died in Boston on August 23.

INCREASE MATHER

Increase Mather, the youngest son of the Reverend Richard Mather of Dorchester, and the father of Cotton Mather, has been described as the "foremost American Puritan" of his generation. Teacher of the Second Church of Boston for more than fifty years, President of Harvard College from 1685 to 1701, agent for Massachusetts Bay in England to request the return of the Charter, and the author of approximately 175 books, pamphlets, prefaces and printed sermons, Mather was intimately involved in political and religious affairs in Boston during the last four decades of the seventeenth century.

The diaries, correspondence, documents, writings, and sermons in this edition represent the largest single extant collection of Increase Mather manuscripts. Most of the diary volumes and all of the manuscript sermons and sermon notes described herein are found in the Mather Family Papers at the American Antiquarian Society; material from the Increase Mather Papers and other collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society augments the holdings of the Antiquarian Society.

Increase Mather's personal papers indicate the breadth of his wide-ranging interests. While his diary entries are concerned, in large part, with devotional matters, the manuscripts of his writings and correspondence include as topics: education, history, politics, and science.

Many of Mather's published writings deal with theological matters, but he wrote important historical and scientific works including A Brief History of the War with the Indians ..., a contemporary account of King Philip's War, and An Essay for the Recording of Illustrious Providences ...,

one of the first scientific writings in America.

Publication of the Increase Mather Papers has been of long-standing interest at both the Historical Society and the Antiquarian Society. In 1868, the Historical Society published the "Mather Papers" (Massachusetts Historical Society, Collections, ser. 4, v. 8) contained in the "New-England Library" of the Reverend Thomas Prince, now deposited at the Boston Public Library. The collection includes a large number of Increase Mather letters, as well as related manuscript material.

In 1909, a committee was formed by the Historical Society for the publication, in cooperation with the Antiquarian Society, of the diaries of Cotton and Increase Mather, and other Mather manuscripts. The Cotton Mather diaries were published in the Collections of the Historical Society, and, in a separate effort, since 1961, the Antiquarian Society has published a number of the Increase Mather manuscripts from the Mather Family Papers in the Antiquarian Society Proceedings. The microfilm edition of the Increase Mather Papers is the culmination of another stage of the cooperative Mather Papers Microfilms project of the two Societies.

PROVENANCE

The bulk of the Mather Family Papers at the American Antiquarian Society, of which the Increase Mather Papers form one of five major subdivisions, were purchased from Hannah Mather Crocker (1752-1829), the great granddaughter of Increase Mather, by Isaiah Thomas and donated to the Antiquarian Society by Thomas in 1814.

Other items in the Mather Family Papers at the Antiquarian Society, including items in the Increase Mather Papers, were the gifts of Thomas Walcut, 1834; Charles Chauncy Clark, 1835; the estate of Thaddeus Mason Harris, 1937; George Mather Randle, 1934; and Michael G. Hall, 1978.

The Increase Mather Papers at the Massachusetts Historical Society consist of gifts of individual items, including those from Elizabeth Belknap, 1858, Sarah Louisa Byles, 1881, and Matt B. Jones, 1937, and purchases by the Society.

For the present edition, Increase Mather materials from other collections at the Historical Society have been inserted chronologically, by type, to form a complete file of all Increase Mather manuscripts held by the Society. Collections from which Increase Mather manuscripts have been drawn include: the papers of Jeremy Belknap, Mellen Chamberlain, Benjamin Colman, and John Davis; the Miscellaneous Bound Manuscripts Collection; the papers of James Otis, Sr. and Thomas Prince; the Saltonstall Family Papers; and the Alexander C. Washburn Autograph Collection.

EDITORIAL PROCEDURE

The editorial work in preparing the Increase Mather Papers for microfilming involved organizing material from several different manuscript collections at one institution, the Massachusetts Historical Society, and interfiling the manuscripts with a larger, existing collection at another institution, the American Antiquarian Society. The composite Increase Mather Papers then were organized into six major subdivisions, by type of material, divided into reel-length segments, and filmed.

William L. Joyce and Kathleen A. Major of the American Antiquarian Society were responsible for the physical arrangement of all the manuscripts and for the description of items in the collection of the Antiquarian Society. The Increase Mather manuscripts of both Societies were filmed by the Readex Microprint Corporation.

Editorial apparatus has been kept to a minimum; the description of the collection that follows consists, in almost every instance, of information taken from existing cataloging of Increase Mather manuscript items or targets produced for the microfilm.

DESCRIPTION OF THE INCREASE MATHER PAPERS

The Increase Mather Papers are in six parts:

1. DIARIES (1659?-1721)

Fourteen volumes and fragments of Increase Mather diaries held by the American Antiquarian Society and two volumes of diaries at the Massachusetts Historical Society have been placed in chronological order. Contained on Reel 1 of this edition.

2. DIARY TYPESCRIPTS (1659?-1717; n.d.)

Typescript copies of fifteen Increase Mather diaries by Michael G. Hall. The typescripts, held by the American Antiquarian Society, are of diaries at both the Antiquarian Society and the Massachusetts Historical Society. The typescripts are in chronological order with an undated item at the end. Contained on Reels 1 and 2.

3. CORRESPONDENCE (n.d.; 1664-1712)

The correspondence of Increase Mather (twenty-seven letters written to or by Mather), held by both Societies, has been placed in a single, chronological file with an undated item filed first. Contained on Reel 2.

4. WRITINGS (1663- c. 1715)

Eleven manuscripts of the writings of Increase Mather (and three copies or edited transcripts of the same), held by the American Antiquarian Society and seven manuscripts at the Massachusetts Historical Society have been placed in a single file. The manuscripts, for the most part, are in chronological order, but the format of some items and the presence of copies and typescripts has resulted in some variation of strict chronological order. Contained on Reels 2 and 3.

5. MISCELLANY (n.d.; 1678-1709)

Seven items from the collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society arranged in chronological order with an undated item filed first. A wide variety of material (certificates, documents, lists, memoranda, etc.) written by Increase Mather. Contained on Reel 3.

Description of the Increase Mather Papers

6. SERMONS (n.d.; 1675-1719; 1670)

Manuscripts of 312 sermons and fragments of sermons held by the American Antiquarian Society. The sermons are arranged in chronological order with an undated fragment filed first. Notes for sermons attributed to Increase Mather, dated c. 1670, held by the Antiquarian Society, have been filed at the end, after the manuscripts of sermons. Contained on Reels 3 and 4.

For ease in use, descriptions that follow are in tabular form.

For each subdivision of the Increase Mather Papers, the following information is given: microfilm reel number; title (and author if other than Increase Mather); inclusive dates; a brief description of the contents where appropriate; number of pages, leaves, or items; and the holder of the original manuscript, abbreviated to (AAS) for the American Antiquarian Society and (MHS) for the Massachusetts Historical Society.
