INTRODUCTORY NOTES

Administrative History

In his will, J. M. Keynes instructed his executors, Geoffrey Keynes and Richard Kahn, to divide his papers in two on his death, into the 'personal' and the 'economic', Keynes to take responsibility for the former and Kahn the latter. The will further directed that Geoffrey Keynes deposit his share in King's College Library and that on the executor's death ownership pass to the College. Subsequently, smaller additions to the juvenilia, family papers and correspondence making up this part of the collection were made by members of the Keynes family. Richard Kahn was also instructed to hand over the much larger accumulation of writing and correspondence on economic theory, the economy and business affairs in his care, this time to the Marshall Library in the University's Faculty of Economics and Politics. In succeeding decades, further transfers of papers were made to the Marshall Library, the most significant batch in 1976 from Keynes' country house, Tilton. It was during their time at the Marshall Library that selected economics papers became the core of the Royal Economic Society's edition of Keynes' works The Collected Writings of John Maynard Keynes (Macmillan/CUP, 1971-89) [hereafter CW]. In 1986 the Faculty Board of Economics and Politics presented its share to King's College Library, reuniting the entire collection in the Modern Archive Centre.

Catalogue

The first summary listings of the Keynes Papers were undertaken in King's and the Marshall Libraries in the mid 1950s, by, respectively, Dr A. N. L. Munby and Mrs Macdonald. Both parts of the collection were extensively consulted on the basis of these lists. On their amalgamation at King's College, however, the opportunity was taken to produce an integrated, more detailed catalogue; one which would also take account of the accumulation of material since the initial transfer and recognise that the division between the personal and economic had resulted in anomalies. Philosophy papers for instance appeared in both parts. Already in 1984 Keynes' engagement diaries had been transferred to King's from the Marshall in an attempt to iron out one discrepancy. Completed in 1993, this new catalogue has, for the material formerly housed in the Marshall Library (roughly that described on pp. 1-84), largely retained the arrangement of the earlier list, where papers were filed by subject. Within subject sections, however, certain files have been reorganised, their contents amalgamated with files on the same subjects from later transfers (especially those items previously catalogued as MM/) and their descriptions enlarged. The original box list of the personal papers has been completely reworked (on pp.85-118). In certain cases, to improve coherence, material has been moved from one economics subject section to another or from the personal to the economics 'halves' of the collection; for example, Keynes' papers to the Apostles are now all catalogued as UA/; the contents of the economics section entitled 'MISCELLANEOUS MATERIAL' (referred to as MM/) has been largely absorbed into the main corpus of the catalogue. A concordance of former and current document references is provided on pp. 133-46 to aid in tracing these alterations in position. The Reel number given in the margin refers to the Chadwyck-Healey Microfilm Edition of the John Maynard Keynes Papers.

Indexes

This catalogue is indexed on pp. 147-61. Additionally, the papers transferred from the Marshall Library were accompanied by a useful index. To help them in their work on the CW, the editors at the Marshall Library compiled an index in the 1950s and 1960s to much, but not all, of the correspondence then in their custody. It should be stressed that it was never a complete finding aid. It was not extended to take in subsequent transfers of material from Tilton and other sources in the 1970s and 1980s. Nor, of course, did it encompass the personal papers of J. M. Keynes then housed in King's College Library.

Since the reunion of the Keynes Papers at King's, this index has been updated to take account of:-

- i. the reorganisation and renumbering of certain sections of the collection;
- ii. the amalgamation of material from the later Tilton transfers with existing files on the same subject (e.g. GTE/);
- iii. the full listing of Keynes' personal correspondence catalogued as PP/45.

Index cards are arranged in alphabetical order by correspondent. Each card itemises the letters exchanged between the correspondent and Keynes, giving their dates and file references. Occasionally, correspondence between the letter writer and other individuals is also recorded. Letters from persons writing on behalf of institutions, societies, businesses, etc. are often further indexed under the name of the organisation. Institutional entries of this kind are cross referenced back to the personal names of their representatives on the card's reverse.

The Papers of Lydia Lopokova Keynes (1892-1981)

Dr Milo Keynes deposited the papers of his aunt in King's College Library in 1983. They have been catalogued for the first time on pp.119-30.

A/ Articles, including Book Reviews and Letters to the Press

Note. This section of the catalogue provides details of the surviving AMS and TS drafts, proofs, clippings and off-prints of articles, reviews and letters to the press by and about JMK, published in GB and abroad, together with related correspondence with press publishers and critics, 1906-46. The series comprises loose papers filed chronologically and a series of cuttings scrapbooks compiled by FAK. It does not include JMK's writings for the Economic Journal (q.v. EJ/) nor the Manchester Guardian Commercial Reconstruction Supplements (q.v. GS/).

In the following list the published titles only of pieces by JMK are given in alphabetical order, and not the earlier headings provided at MS and TS stage, except in cases where it has been impossible to identify the printed version from the earlier surviving drafts. Where there are several published titles in English for the same article, all are recorded. For full bibliographical details, the reader is referred to the bibliography in CW, vol. XXX. Writings by others are not listed.

A/1 Notebooks recording articles, letters and reviews by JMK published in British press and academic journals. 1908-11, 1930-3. For 1908-11, also records lectures given and money received; for 1930-3, JMK and LLK's broadcasts and foreign publishing.

Correspondence

PP/45 This alphabetical listing includes all the correspondence previously found in Boxes 17-19, 20-21, 22-24, 30-32, 34-36, 37 and most of that in Box 38 envelopes 1-6. It also includes some correspondence not previously listed, either because they were in Boxes 20-21 or because they have only recently been acquired or become available for study, or because the correspondents' signatures have only recently been identified. It also includes letters formerly catalogued as L/Z and L/U.

Files may contain subsidiary correspondence with other people, as well as associated notes or printed material.

Entries record the number of letters from the person heading the entry, which may be assumed to be addressed to JMK unless otherwise stated, then a note in parentheses of the number of JMK's letters existing in the file as carbons or AMS copies, and finally a note of the date range. When JMK's original letters survive in the file, this is made clear thus 12 from JMK, without parentheses.
