

Save Your Budget by Streaming Movies and More from the Library

students can stream 70,000+ videos anytime, anywhere thanks to the library

It's Friday night and you're scrolling through Netflix... for the second time. Before you watch season 2 of The Office AGAIN, check out the streaming collection available through the library's web page subscribes to Academic Video Online. Designed to support academics (remember that when you're researching a paper or if you need help understanding a difficult topic) it also includes scads of movies and videos on anything you may be interested in. Need help adding audio into your PowerPoint presentation? Want to learn how to cook with Jacque Pepin? Want to see a live theater performance, but can't get the tickets? This and more is available in Academic Video Online, where you have your pick of Academy Award®, Emmy®, and Peabody® Award winners, international films, documentaries, plays, and more.

Your university ID means you can stream when and where you want – in your dorm, apartment or your favorite study spot. And thanks to your library, there is no additional cost to you. So enjoy!

To stream go to: <https://video.alexanderstreet.com/channel/academic-video-online>

Have questions? Connect with your friendly library at: